We want to increase participation and children & young people's chances to try music through a more equal spread and wider range of musical learning opportunities.	We want to increase young people's ongoing involvement in music by ensuring the opportunities to learn and perform at the next level, as well as trying something new, are easily accessible.	We want to encourage an increase in children and young people accessing high quality events and performances as well as giving their own performances.	We want to support the ongoing development of a highly skilled workforce that can meet the developing needs of children and young people.	We want to promote a broader understanding of the value of music's current and potential contribution to educational attainment and social outcomes.	We want to improve access to information about music education, people's ability to make informed choices and the identification of gaps in provision.	We want to enable participation and progression for children and young people whose circumstances may create barriers and challenges to accessing music making. This outcome lies at the heart of our work.	We want to engage a broad range of stakeholders in Hub activities and make them able to influence decisions which improve children and young people's music making.
